Legal realism is a naturalistic approach to law and is the view that jurisprudence should emulate the methods of natural science, i.e., rely on empirical evidence. Hypotheses have to be tested against observations of the world.. Legal realists believe that the legal science should investigate law exclusively with the value-free methods of natural sciences, also called 'sciences of the real' in ...

3 At 288 H - 289A. The Court relied on Swart v Smuts 1971 (1) SA 819 (A) in which the Appellate Division held that while a contravention of a statute is generally treated as a nullity, the wording and purview of the legislation in question may indicate that the legislature did not intend this result. In Lende, the prohibition against 'taking' and 'having' a Black person into ...
