You should remember that shell scripting is less of a language and more of a collection of commands. Instinctively you think that this "language" requires you to follow an if with a [or a [[.Both of those are just commands that return an exit status indicating success or failure (just like every other command).

Color management basics. A conventional digital color photo uses a mix of red, green and blue to create the colors in an image. But the RGB values for a pixel don't define an exact color unless they are accompanied by a color profile. This color profile lets the computer know how to decode the color properly.

xlrd/xlwt (standard): Python does not have this functionality in it's standard library, but I think of xlrd/xlwt as the "standard" way to read and write excel files. It is fairly easy to make a workbook, add sheets, write data/formulas, and format cells. If you need all of these things, you may have the most success with this library.
