Pillars of Creation is a photograph taken by the Hubble Space Telescope of elephant trunks of interstellar gas and dust in the Eagle Nebula, specifically the Serpens constellation, some 6,500–7,000 light years from Earth. They are so named because the gas and dust are in the process of creating new stars, while also being eroded by the light from nearby stars that have recently formed.

It is not surprising that the California state tree is also one of its most famous identifiers. The Golden State, though known for many unique geographical and geological facets, is often noted by its famous Redwood forests. As such, the Sequoia is this great state's tree. Split into two familial subcategories, both the Redwood and Giant Sequoia reach extraordinary heights of between 279 and ...

Not too long ago the average housewife would have been amazed at how wasteful we are, throwing out all that great bacon fat. After all it's a rendered fat, just like lard or tallow, suitable for cooking and use in recipes. I followed the lead of someone who's done more research and started keeping mine.
